Policy on Employee Relationships in the Workplace

Objective

Pytheos Health Systems firmly believes that effective business operations require a workplace where individuals maintain distinct boundaries between their personal and professional contacts at work. Although this policy does not prevent the development of friendships or personal relationships between co-workers, it does establish boundaries as to how relationships are conducted during working hours and within the working environment.

Individuals in supervisory or managerial roles and those with authority over others' terms and conditions of employment are subject to more stringent requirements under this policy due to their status as role models, their access to sensitive information and their ability to affect the employment of individuals in subordinate positions.

This policy does not preclude or interfere with the rights of employees protected by the National Labor Relations Act or any other applicable statute concerning employment relationship.

1. During working hours and in working areas, employees are expected to conduct themselves in an appropriate workplace manner that does not interfere with others or with overall productivity.
2. During non-working hours, such as lunches, breaks, and before and after work periods, employees engaging in personal conversations (other than work related) should observe an appropriate workplace manner to avoid offending other workers or putting others in an uncomfortable position.
3. Employees are strictly prohibited from engaging in physical contact that would in any way be deemed inappropriate in the workplace by a reasonable person while anywhere on company premises, whether during working hours or not.

Pytheos Health Systems Private Limited
First Floor, Spl. No. 10,
KSSIDC Industrial Area,

4. Employees who allow personal relationships with co-workers to adversely affect the work environment will be subjected to company's disciplinary policy, including counselling for minor problems. Failure to change behavior and maintain expected work responsibilities is viewed as a serious disciplinary issue.
5. Employee off-duty conduct is generally regarded as private, as long as such conduct does not create problems within the workplace.
6. Any supervisor, manager, executive or other company official in a sensitive or influential position with Pytheos Health Systems must disclose the existence of a personal relationship with another co-worker. Disclosure may be made to the HR immediately. Management will review the circumstances to determine whether any conflict of interest exists.
7. When a conflict of interest or potential risk is identified due to a company official's relationship with a co-worker/relationship between co-workers, management will work with both parties involved to consider options of resolving the problem. The initial solution may be to make sure the parties no longer work together on matters where one is able to influence the other or take action for the other. Matters such as Hiring, Termination, Promotions, Compensation Decisions and Financial Transactions etc., are examples of situations that may require reallocation of duties to avoid any actual perceived rewards or disadvantage. In some cases, other measures may be necessarily taken, caused by a personal relationship between coworkers or among managers, supervisors or other in positions of authority which will be deemed a voluntary resignation by either one of the parties.
8. Failure to cooperate will result in disciplinary action up to and including termination.
9. The provisions of this policy apply regardless of the sexual orientation of the parties involved.
10. Where doubts exist as to specific meaning of the terms used above, employees should make judgements based on the overall spirit and intent of this policy.
11. Any concerns about the administration of this policy should be addressed to the HR.
